

Specialized Women Services (SWS)

Specialized Women Services (SWS) uses evidenced based models of treatment aimed at addressing the specific needs of pregnant and parenting women seeking support and growth through their substance use disorder challenges.

Services focus on challenges faced by parents and offer job skills training, therapy, daycare, parenting classes, care coordination, and aftercare planning to promote holistic well-being. This grant pays for assessment and treatment at no cost to the family.

Funding for SWS treatment is based on county of residence. Find the county number assigned to your area and locate the treatment center provided below.

SWS caters to mothers with two children under the age of 7, providing up to 20 beds for a residential treatment duration of up to 120 days. The program prioritizes creating a supportive environment for personal and familial growth, emphasizing a journey towards a brighter future.

Eligibility for treatment for pregnant women with or without their children includes the following:

- Female over the age of 18.
- No insurance coverage or insurance coverage not applicable to substance use disorder treatment.
- Proof of residency in Arkansas.
